Not all GPs were up to date; some were unconvinced about the need for systematic antenatal care. The NHS ordered four to be installed in major units, the Hammersmith getting the first in 1953. In 2017, in addition to her Chief Nurse role, Lisa was appointed to the as Interim Regional Director for London and South East.

WWL Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust

Tiziana works for the Health Innovation Network on a two-year project to reduce catheter-associated urinary-tract infections CAUTIs in South London.

World

Nicky has significant experience in Higher education, having worked in HE since 1990. Psychiatrists were few and, although there were leaders, the quality as a whole was questionable. GPs saw fewer cases, particularly of operative obstetrics.

1948

He is now the National Clinical Lead Primary Care within the Medical Directorate of the NHS England, where he has been advising on the support of the Friends and Family Test in General Practice.

Meeting twice in the first half of 1952, it advised the Minister that the statistical evidence strongly suggested that there was an association between smoking and cancer of the lung, but this evidence was insufficient to justify propaganda. Jane has executive oversight of maternity, patient experience, learning disability and, in January 2016, became executive lead for Patient and Public Participation.

The Committee thought, in any case, that it would be undesirable for central government to be involved in cancer education, but that it should be left to local authorities and voluntary bodies. Infective disease of the heart had been a major problem but the effectiveness of antibiotics in streptococcal infections, which might otherwise have been followed by acute rheumatism, began to change its incidence.

The method of blotting out the pain Jon had put so much faith into, resulted in him spending two years shut in his bedroom unable to cope or face the world, too frightened to leave the room. Jon now takes care of his wife but, having a real desire to share his coping skills, he started up a new charitable incorporated organisation for anyone with a health condition that feels they could benefit from peer support. His wife Sheila has multiple Long-Term Conditions, including COPD, spinal and related arthritic conditions, severe abdominal pains and mental health issues.

1948

This system, combined with a shortage of doctors, provided no financial incentive to improve services, but neither was there any incentive to over-treat patients. More radical ideas were discouraged — long service or merit awards, assisting retirement of elderly GPs, or undergraduate teaching by GP academics. Matching cases by human judgement was open to error; randomisation involving large numbers provided an even dispersion of the personal characteristics likely to affect the outcome.
