With late-glacial relative sea-level rise and retreat of the Welsh Ice, the Mawddach valley tidewater glacier became grounded and confined to the valley. Khutaza Park, Bell Crescent, Westlake Business Park. The constant action of the waves since the sea invaded the plain wore away the bases and the exposure of the strata to the wind and rain as well as the undermining of the lower parts have caused the disintegration of the upper strata which are out of reach of the waves.

It may therefore be inferred that these beds of peat underlie the whole of the beach probably from the east end of Redcar to the Tees mouth. At Redcar Fields and Redcar Sike there are no signs of scars, so they could not have anything to do with fixing the name there. Image credit: University of Wales, Trinity Saint David.
