Cricket legend Ian Chappell says Michael Clarke is Australia's best Test skipper since 2000, overlooks Steve Waugh, Ricky Ponting, Steve Smith, Tim Paine

In a Test career interrupted by the , he scored 2,863 at an average of 38. Bowling slows, usually round the wicket from a great height, he did not turn the ball a lot, but his leg theory was so pronounced that on occasions he sent down over after over wide of the leg stump without being punished, because he dropped the ball with what really was deceptive flight and usually very little break.

Warwick Armstrong: One Of Australia's First Great Captains

His methods, however, are remarkably effective; they show a most admirable blend of aggression and caution, backed by the right temperament.

Sergeant W.H. Shiers, Lieutenant Sir Keith Smith, Captain Sir Ross Smith and Sergeant J.M. Bennett b...

Armstrong rotated his bowlers around, and it was eventually his own leg-breaks that provided the breakthrough, having Brown caught by Gregory. Twenty minutes were lost before the batsmen and umpires had could walk out and play could be resumed. It was originally written as a Joint Australia — New Zealand page, however the Kiwis have since been split off onto their own page to cover their own vehicles.

Merv Hughes Inducted into the Australian Cricket Hall of Fame
