Lineage of 'Allamah ash

Al Wasir al-Saghir's father Ahmad ibn al-Hasan served as a commander in his father's army, and was known for both his valour and virtue. Al-Radi said in reply that he paid tribute to his learning and art, not to his faith. They were al-Sharif al-Murtada, who occupied the chair of his teacher as his successor to the marj'iyyah of the Shi'ah world of scholarship, and his younger brother al-Sharif al-Radi, acclaimed to be a great genius of versatile talents, still unprecedented in the history of Islamic scholarship and Arabic literature.

Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Hilal al-Harrani al-Sabi d. He lived for a long time among the Daylamites, who were Zoroastrians, and some even pagans, living in complete darkness.

Azwaje mutahhirat : (Wives of Holy Prophet sallallahu alaihi wasallam)

He was in close contact with the al-Sharif family. Al-Husayn ibn Ahmad al-Nili al-Baghdadi, known as Ibn al-Hajjaj al-Baghdadi d.

Syi'ir Jawa Sholawat Khas Habib Syekh Assegaf

He was a gifted man with great intelligence, scholarship, knowledge and conviction of faith. The next morning Fatimah, mother of al-Sayyid al-Murtada and al-Sayyid al-Radi, came to his mosque surrounded by her servants, bringing her two small sons, asking that he teach them.

Syi'ir Jawa Sholawat Khas Habib Syekh Assegaf

His genius came to the notice of his family and teachers at a very young age. People, particularly the Sunnis, admonished al-Radi saying how could a man like him, belonging to the family of the Prophet saw , praise a non-believer.
