An Historic Overview of Latino Immigration and the Demographic Transformation of the United States

We're supposed to be men. As white Americans increasingly found themselves unemployed, they grew outraged at the fact that farmers in the Southwest employed Mexican and Mexican American laborers. Fewer Mexican workers feel the need to come to the United States to be able to survive.

Latino Workers

The majority of Cubans and their children have tended to congregate in South Florida nearly 70 percent of all Cubans continue to reside in Florida but over time, Cubans and Cuban Americans—like other Latino migrants—have become more geographically dispersed over time. The number of in recent years, though the annual totals remain below the 1.
