Planet fashion: the 10 coolest ethical fashion brands

Statements consisting only of original research should be removed. The packaging is sugarcane-derived and plastic free, too, which makes it totally eco-friendly. The fashion industry benefits from racial, class and gender inequalities.

Environmental Impacts of the Fashion Industry — SustainYourStyle

For example, can the product be easily deconstructed and reused or recycled? The entire process takes less than 25 days, a shockingly speedy turnaround time that puts and to shame.

The Good Trade

These are extremely harmful for the aquatic life and the health of the millions people living by those rivers banks. This is due to the inferior quality of fabrics used but also a result of a significant increase in collections that are being released by the fashion industry.

16 Eco

Second, not just brands but consumers are reluctant to change as well. See more below, and count us in. While most textiles can be recycled, in the main they are downgraded almost immediately into low-quality end-uses, such as filling materials.
