NDIS, OOHHC and Juvenile Justice

Preparation for a young person to leave the Parental Responsibility of the Minister needs to commence at age 15. What if I have a question or need more information or clarification about the NDIS? For shared clients with disability who enter detention it is the responsibility of DCJ or NGO staff with OOHHC case management responsibility to undertake activities related to the NDIS access, planning, monitoring and review process. Who has Primary Case Management responsibility for shared DCJ JJ NSW Clients? Once an NDIS plan is approved or modified the OOHHC caseworker will share the NDIS plan with JJ NSW and arrange for it to be attached to ChildStory.

Over the last few years a great deal of public and academic criticism has been levelled at traditional court process for dealing with young offenders. What support should be provided for shared clients with a disability that do not have an NDIS plan? The OOHHC caseworker, in collaboration with JJ NSW, will need to determine if an urgent NDIS plan review request is required. For more information on applying for guardianship see.

What support will be provided for shared clients to access an NDIS plan review? If you have a question about out-of-home care and the NDIS, please email the DCJ NDIS team at. JJ NSW also administers youth justice conferencing. If one is required, the OOHHC caseworker must submit this request to the National Disability Insurance Agency NDIA as soon as possible.

NDIS, OOHHC and Juvenile Justice

What preparations are required for shared clients who are leaving the Parental Responsibility of the Minister? Any disputes should be resolved at the local level as soon as possible, and when necessary escalated as per the MoU. The role of Juvenile Justice JJ NSW supervises and supports children and young people sentenced to community-based or custodial orders, supervises children and young people on bail as directed by the court, provides support to young offenders to meet the conditions of bail, supervises children and young people remanded in custody pending finalisation of their court matters and prepares reports for the consideration of the courts in determining sentences. Abstract The passage of the NSW Young Offenders Act in 1997 attracted a great deal of interest in New South Wales and elsewhere.

NDIS, OOHHC and Juvenile Justice

All elements of the justice system and relevant elements of the civil justice system are responsible for meeting the needs of children and young people with disability in line with the and existing legal obligations, including making reasonable adjustments in accordance with the.

Pathways to the NDIS for children and young people with disability serving a custodial sentence, on bail, parole or a non-custodial order are outlined in the Operational Guidance for NSW Mainstream Services on the Interface with the National Disability Insurance Scheme. JJ NSW will determine if there is an NDIS plan in place by contacting the DCJ or NGO with OOHHC case management responsibility.
