The Netherlandish Image after Iconoclasm, 1566

Jonathan Berger is an artist whose work centers around the practice of exhibition making, encompassing a spectrum of activity including sculpture, installation, performance, archival work, design, relational practices, education, and the production of large-scale collaborative projects. Jason is currently delving into directing and producing documentaries and television, and he is at work on a revisionist biography of Freddie Mercury. Matthew Wilson Smith is the author of The Total Work of Art: From Bayreuth to Cyberspace Routledge, 2007 , which presents a history and theory of the Gesamtkunstwerk in relation to technology and mass culture, placing such diverse figures as Wagner, Moholy-Nagy, Brecht, Riefenstahl, Disney, Warhol, and contemporary cyber-artists within a genealogy of totalizing performance.

The volume will appear in autumn 2016. Yet within this fascinating book, some items are conspicuously missing. This perception of theatre as a complex cultural phenomenon continues to animate my work and raises important questions regarding the creation of festivals, theatre, and opera of the Ancien Regime.
