patterns of parental involvement based on, among other things, whether they are recent immigrants.

Input

In order to work effectively in a culturally and ethnically diverse community, a community builder needs to first understand how each racial and ethnic group in that community is organized in order to support its members.

Social Influences on Human Behavior

Norms are the basis of behaviour of members in the group.

Group Behavior

The people, in such situations, conform to the norms of the important group to which they belong or hope to belong.

For example, employees who form an informal group can either discuss how to improve a production process or how to create shortcuts that jeopardize quality. Further, competitiveness can be encouraged but it should not come at the expense of collaboration and cooperation that are at the heart of organizational success.
