The essays discuss examples taken from across the spectrum of the arts, past and present—music, poetry, painting and sculpture, architecture, industrial design, and engineering artifacts—in the coherent context of Bronowski's view of the human creative process. Before his death in 1974, he was for many years a Senior Fellow at the Salk Institute for Biological Studies, where his formal area of research was concerned with the questions of human specificity and uniqueness. This volume extends the process to a further level of insight Jacob Bronowski truly educated an enormous number of members of that diffuse population usually referred to, with a hint of condescension, as educated laymen through his widely shared television series on the concepts of science and through such highly regarded books as The Identity of Man and The Ascent of Man.

The Visionary Eye

Behavior operates only probabilistically and in this indeterminate reality lies human freedom. He showed all of us that we share that challenge of beauty and values which is art, of the other way of knowing which is science. At home in both scientific and humanistic thought, he draws examples from both to clarify and support the articles of his faith in science and the human race.
