The Parenting of Adolescents and Adolescents as Parents: A Developmental Contextual Perspective

In this sense, children are producers of their own development , and the presence of such child effects constitutes the basis of bidirectional relations between parents and children. However, in the case of remarriage, there is evidence that although both male and female adolescents may have difficulty interacting with stepfathers, girls may have particular problems. She talks softly about his feelings and then offers him an interesting activity of soft, mushy play dough.

How does parent involvement in education affect children's learning?

Children of parents in the couple-focused groups were at an advantage in terms of higher scores on individually administered achievement tests, and lower levels of aggressive behaviour at school. The School Climate Survey — Revised, Elementary and Middle School Version SCS-MS, Emmons et al. This empirically based, self-reported instrument is composed of two independent scales that assess aggressive behaviors and reactions to peer aggression among children aged 6 to 13 years.

Supporting Father Involvement: A group intervention for low-income Community and Child Welfare referred couples. Thus, parenting is a complex process, involving much more than a mother or father providing food, safety, and succor to an infant or child. A third intervention study, funded by the California Office of Child Abuse Protection, focused on encouraging low-income fathers to become and stay involved with their young children.
