About this Item: Longman, 1996. Developmentally appropriate curriculum: Best practices in early childhood education. What would you like to be? That is all both the student and teacher need.

Specific English: Listening: What's the aim? (Part 1)

Developmentally appropriate curriculum: Best practices in early childhood education. So I used one from a BEC Vantage practice test book.

Reading Aloud to Build Comprehension

The list goes on ... listen to songs, watch films or TV programmes, with or without subtitles, etc etc. All three show how the two work together to get something done.

Norwegian Pre

And that's how I've always justified it to myself as a teacher.

English course: Pre

Young children instantly relate to the struggle of the little bunny trying to get to sleep. They were going to a new land, hoping for a better life. Stories in the classroom: Storytelling, reading aloud, and roleplaying with children.

5 Culture Lesson Plans: How to Teach Culture in the Classroom

The authors and publishers are also grateful to the following contributors: Design and page make-up: Stephanie White at Kamæ Design Picture research: Hilary Luckcock Photography: Gareth Boden Audio recordings: John Green at Audio Workshop and id-Audio, London The authors and publishers would like to thank all of those who took part in the authentic recording sessions, especially: Annie Gentil, Alba Higgins, David Warwick, Susanne Neubert, Siew Wan Chai, Xi Yen Tan, Paula Porroni, Natalie Krol, Leonardo Solano, Megan Rivers-Moore, Manuel Arroyo-Kalin, Pham Thi Thanh An, Andrew Reid, Richa Bansal, Masha Sutton, Seung Yang, Tom Boyd, Fran Disken, Astrid Gonzales-Rabade, Anri Iwasaki, Annie Gentil, Martin Huarte-Espinosa, Ivan Gladstone, Nuria Gonzales-Rabade. Children should be encouraged to take part in competitive sports.

Specific English: Listening: What's the aim? (Part 1)

It also includes either an Across cultures or an Independent learning section, and then an Explore speaking or Explore writing task. So it made me think again about how I should be integrating listening skills into my home-made courses. The last section shows how to apply this research to your work with children.
