The journey inwards: A simple introduction to the practice of contemplative...

However, with the support of one who seemed so sure this was what I needed, I stuck with it, and the most amazing thing began to happen. Kenneth Leech is the founder of Centrepoint, one of the biggest programs for homeless youth in Europe, and former field officer for racial justice for the Church of England and community theologian at St Botolph's Church in Aldgate, London.

SUFISM

Even though my mind had a hard time grasping what this settling would actually be like, the image of the jar of river water captured what was true about me. Find yourself...and experience deeper meaning, connection and greater happiness at this transformational weekend retreat.

Saint Albert of Jerusalem

Only then can the wild oscillations of the Base Self subside, and the spirit be allowed to come to the fore.

Pull of the Tides: 2006

Being Contemplative in a World of Action What do I appreciate most about the tradition that gets its name from Benedict of Nursia? Certainly to live prayerfully all the time is possible; but, to pray continually is impossible.

Workshops & Short Courses

An understanding of what time means in the physical realm and the Spiritual realm. There is, however, a distinct similarity in meditation in Hinduism and Buddhism on the one hand, and in Judaism and Christianity on the other.
