Archaeological prospecting in woodland using LiDAR

But, as labor costs become higher all over the world and as modern civilization encroaches upon ancient sites, there is a need to facilitate the finding of structures at known sites and to locate unsuspected or lost cities and sites before they are lost to us forever.

Expedition Magazine

Douglas 1978 and references cited therein , but it was founded significantly earlier than that.

These interrelated aspects are the foundation for using new methods and tools in archaeology. More recently Varian has designed an even lighter and more portable cesium magnetometer for other purposes, but this unit is also suitable for our archaeological prospecting although not quite so sensitive. .

Archaeogeophysics

When I returned in May 1968, I found out that not only had the route of the ditch been changed, but that it was already under construction.
