Khalifa appoints new members to NCC

Al Baghdadi and Saja wanted to revamp university campuses in Mosul and Al Raqqa, restricting one to a women-only institution. Unmarried foreign women who come to Al Raqqa are treated well and lodged with other single female members of Daesh.

Islamic Finance in Malaysia: What is Al

As a political and social nobody, it would make Al Baghdadi important, providing a tribal umbrella that he desperately needed in Iraqi politics. There is no official post for Saja Al Dulaini in Daesh. A snapshot of her coming out of a Syrian prison in March 2014 was seen.

Meet the 'First Lady' of Daesh

They pay no rent and a Daesh officer is charged with running all of their errands from a distance, until each of them is properly wed. She was released as part of a much-publicised prisoner swap in exchange for nuns kidnapped in the ancient Christian village of Maaloula. Al Baghdadi is willing to pay Daesh women — and only Daesh women — in order for them to obtain a higher education.

Khalifa appoints new members to NCC

. It is public knowledge in Al Raqqa, says the wife of one Daesh warrior that Al Baghdadi wants to increase the ratio of women in Daesh.

al Muhadzab

Al Baghdadi seems to be taking his cue from Saddam Hussain who played tribal politics brilliantly, treating tribal leaders like kings in exchange for unlimited support from their community elders. Not only would its classes be free-of-charge; but women would get a state grant to complete their higher education. This is where he befriended Abu Mohammad Al Jolani, the Syrian Al Qaida operative who in turn, introduced him to Abu Bakr Al Baghdadi.
