There is a clapping game that goes with this. It makes it really easy to identify something different and by the time we get around to officially making it conscious, most of the kids are already ten steps ahead and have found the new sound and worked out for themselves that it contains four even sounds on a beat. A few favourites of mine include Shanghai Chicken a very fun egg-shaker passing game and Chicken on a Fencepost, which introduces my kids to Squawks the Squeaky Rubber Chicken.
