We have the right, but not the obligation, to remove or decline to post any Content that may, in our sole discretion, violate these Terms or that is otherwise objectionable to us. The problem is, that such ideas are based on assumption, selective observation or journalistic impressions rather than on sound empirical evidence. In particular, analyses indicate that many countries in Africa still not have the macro-economic policy stance that would enable them to maximise their external performance.

Nelson's Development Strategies

However, due to the impact of global economic integration and the financial crisis in recent years, the economic and trade cooperation between China and some countries in East Africa has experienced large fluctuations, which has caused the originally stable trade to start to become unbalanced. But this is only a trial period. On the issue of debt, the constraint on development imposed by the debt overhand is increasingly clear, particularly for Africa.

Land pressures, the evolution of farming systems, and development strategies in Africa: A synthesis

Most countries in Africa are small and poor, making an inward looking strategy unattractive.
