Gerard van Swieten

Under his mentorship Störck was promoted in 1757. However, he was not and had not expected to be offered his chair, since Catholics were not accepted as faculty at Leiden University. Since 1745 he was also librarian for Maria Theresa in what was then the.

Cooperation with his famous mentor was also of huge significance in the field of experimental pharmacology. He has advised Empress to hastily issue patents for organisation of separate courses at the faculty. There is not the slightest connection between the cause and the given effect.

Impact of Gerard Van Swieten on the development of Austrian medicine throughout the 18th century

Dat Van Swieten tolerant was tegenover protestanten is daarvoor gewoon te weinig bewijs. Successor of De Haen at the position of director of clinic in Vienna was Maximilian Stoll 1742-1787. Wave of reforms During the first half of the 18 th century, Austria has made only small steps regarding the internal stabilisation and centralisation of the state power.

Still, his primary concentration on medicine was unquestionable.

Swieten, Gerard (1700

Studenten waren er nauwelijks, promoties vonden maar eens in de zes jaar plaats en de faculteit als zodanig was eerder een belangenvereniging voor de hoofdstedelijke medische stand, dan een eigentijdse instelling voor onderwijs en onderzoek. Arrival of Doctor Gerard van Swieten in Vienna, in 1745, as new personal physician of the Holy Roman Empress Maria Theresa, was starting point of a huge wave of transformation in the scope of Austrian medicine.

Gerard van Swieten

He also tried to use scientific and rational aspects for the judgement of literature.
