LAFEU Farewell, pretty lady: you must hold the credit of your father. Besides, virginity is peevish, proud, idle, made of self-love, which is the most inhibited sin in the canon.

Shakespeare's All's Well That Ends Well Text: Act 4, Scene 2

Shakespeare's All's Well That Ends Well Text: Act 1, Scene 1

What's the matter, That this distemper'd messenger of wet, 470 The many-colour'd Iris, rounds thine eye? Once you've lost your virginity, you can make ten more virgins.

All's well that ends well

At court, your master will have a thousand relationships. Her new husband is appalled at the match, however, and shortly after their marriage flees France, accompanied only by a scoundrel named Parolles, to fight in the army of the Duke of Florence. Chastened, Bertram consents to be a good husband to her, and there is general rejoicing.

Summary of All's Well That Ends Well

Virginity, like an old courtier, wears her cap out of fashion; richly suited, but unsuitable: just like the brooch and the toothpick, which wear not now. Is there no military policy, how virgins might blow up men? I especially think, under Mars.
