Given the lack of validated guidelines for accomplishing such self-evaluation, supervisors must devise their own methods of data collection or turn to resources from other fields. The supervisory process in speech-language pathology and audiology.

Practice Education

The methods by which a student becomes a speech and language therapist have developed since the 1970s and have been influenced by different models of higher and professional education.

Speech and language therapists

Summary This document defines supervision and highlights key issues that reflect the complexity of providing exemplary supervision. Mentoring is an intense interaction between two people, where the mentor has authority and power based on experience. This might be because of specialisation in a certain area or with a particular client group, or a movement into roles in management, education or research.

Therapy Innovations

Both sets of standards may be updated periodically. One measure of supervisory effectiveness in speech-language pathology and audiology. Critical thinking is based on building hypotheses, collecting data, and analyzing outcomes.

Special Education / Speech and Language Services

Dudding and Justice reported that electronic supervision allows for more flexibility in scheduling and a reduction in travel costs while also increasing the student's knowledge and appreciation for technology.
