Niematerialne dziedzictwo kulturowe wsi podlaskiej

W artykule omówiono genezę mniejszości ukraińskiej na Podlasiu oraz zmiany jej liczebności i rozmieszczenia w tym regionie. Borderlands, especially those highly diverse in terms of nationality, religion, language and culture, are often identified with unstable, conflict-prone areas with past and present antagonism between nations sharing them.

Undoubtedly, one of the most important issues of protection of intangible heritage in the Podlasie region is the problem of transferring knowledge and skills associated with traditional crafts. In the 9th and 10th centuries, the area was inhabited by tribes, mostly by , with settlements of to the north beyond the Narew River and likely to the south. This is the case, among others, in Podlasie, where there are centuries-old traditions of cohabitation of diverse communities.

Podlachia

Some Tatars from the territories annexed to the USSR have been repatriated to Poland and clustered in cities, particularly. Cambridge University Press, 2000, p. Only after a few decades later, at the turn of the 80s and 90s, began the process of rebirth of the Ukrainian national identity among the Orthodox community of Podlasie.

Ukraińcy na Podlasiu

In this simple schematic division of religious and ethnic structure, there was no room for Ukrainians. After 1831, Russian authorities forbade the Greek-Catholic faith in northern Podlachia and it disappeared from the area. In 1912, Russian authorities issued a tolerance edict that made it possible to change confession from Orthodox to Roman Catholic but not to Greek-Catholic, which had been completely deleted.
