Edward Meneeley Artist

Meneeley has been around the New York art scene for three decades - and in virtually every capacity, from artist to art teacher, from corporate consultant on art to art publisher. The tableaux you see on these pages are the work of interior designer David Guilmet, a partner with Patrick Bell in the firm Bell-Guilmet Associates.

And then in 1968, the year Seth Siegelau instigated his highly influential, photocopied-book-as-exhibition project, , Meneeley made Portraits: People and Objects, which included a reassembled photo collage portrait of his friend Jasper Johns. The show is organized by Michelle Donnelly, a curatorial fellow.
