After the turn of the twentieth century, psychologists and physicians aimed to make child study scientifically respectable by excluding lay researchers. In his view, differences in income and socioeconomic status are based on intelligence rather than on differences in educational opportunity or the effects of discrimination, exclusion, and deprivation. Fold-outs, if any, are not part of the book.

Contributions of Karen Horney to Psychology

Descartes believed in the principle of dualism: that the mind is fundamentally different from the mechanical body. Now canoes came up, and they heard the noise of paddles and saw one canoe coming up to them.
