Histrionic Personality Disorder

The template was made by a combined effort of therapists and can be used to represent the behaviors that are a focus for this treatment. They may exhibit sexually provocative behavior, express strong emotions with an impressionistic style, and can be easily influenced by others.

Histrionics

In Marcie Kaplan's A Women's View of DSM-III, she argues that women are overdiagnosed due to potential biases and expresses that even healthy women are often automatically diagnosed with HPD. Infantile histrionic Including features Labile, high-strung, volatile emotions; childlike hysteria and nascent pouting; demanding, overwrought; fastens and clutches to another; is excessively attached, hangs on, stays fused to and clinging. He believed the reason for being unable to love could have resulted from a traumatic experience, such as the death of a close relative during childhood or divorce of one's parents, which gave the wrong impression of committed relationships.
