Frank Richard Stockton (1834

However, she heard the unaccustomed noise of wheels, and looked out of the parlor window.

Trudder Grange

It seems history had repeated itself, this time with their new proprietor.

Rudder Grange By Frank R. Stockton (1834

He is ours--our own horse. Something akin to despair must have seized upon her, for Euphemia declared that the floors looked dirtier than on the occasion of her first visit, when we rented the boat. But there was a great deal yet to be thought of and planned out, although we were ready for winter.

Frank Richard Stockton (1834

I wish here to make some mention of Euphemia's methods of work in her chicken-yard. I believe the small conveniences you have on this list come to more money than the furniture and carpets.

Rudder Grange by Stockton, Frank R.: Near Fine Hardcover (1885) 1st Edition

He was a big man with black hair an' very violent.
