Sending Your Kid to Camp With Diabetes

These steps are especially important for those with a higher risk of serious illness from COVID-19. Between activities, students also participate in therapy sessions with a behavioral coach as well as group sessions with other campers.

Camp Trios

What about when a kids wants to watch anime music videos of pop songs on youTube all day? We don't do televisions or CRT monitors because of the high-voltage capacitors, but we ask families to bring in anything else they've got. Does he hate to tell people he has diabetes? Soccer Flag Football Baseball Junior Physical Literacy This sport module is rooted in Long Term Athlete Development LTAD principles and is designed to introduce children to activities that will help them develop fundamental movement skills and physical literacy, while gaining an appreciation for a variety of sports. And when diabetes disappears, every camper can show what makes them special, not what makes them different.

Playing Sports and Other Activities

All campers must have control of bowel and bladder, as our facilities and staff are not equipped to care for campers who require regular support in these areas. Be sure to connect daily via phone or email with the coordinator. One is showing kids how to solder by making a simple flashlight soldering together a switch, 2 AA battery pack, and a blue or white LED.
