The following year they were fighting in Greece with 1st Armoured Brigade. Consequently disease set in and spread like wildfire. It served in Southern England until June 1811 when it was transported from Devon to Ireland.

Royal Horse Artillery

Cornwallis set the Example by destroying all but one of his own Waggon.

Great Britain

Incredibly, the British Government did not honour those who had served in the campaign until 1848 when the Military General Service Medal was issued. The letters he wrote home during this period show just how bloody many of these battles were. Nevertheless, as the following cutting depicts, in 1892 Cricieth in their turn accepts the 23rd with unbounded hospitality.
