Whatever it is, it manifests itself in league cricket. Others, such as the beamer ruling, feel too open to interpretation and potentially damaging to the confidence of young cricketers. A bowler who delivers more than one beamer, which passes above waist height of the batsman, irrespective of speed, must now be taken out of the attack.

No ball Law

Last month, we summarised the new law changes affecting recreational cricket, but Law 42 deserves its own evaluation. A brilliant leg-side stumping from in the opening match of on July 21 earned plenty of plaudits, but questions emerged over the legality of the dismissal after replays suggested that the wicket was against the laws.
