The Barrister: Or Strictures On The Education Proper For The Bar (1818): Ruggles, Thomas: 9781120727565: Books

Matters which may affect your fitness to become a practising barrister You have a duty to disclose any behaviour or determinations by others eg regulatory bodies or educational institutions which may call into question your fitness to become a practising barrister. This asks similar questions to the Admission Declaration. After you have received the outcome of your review to the IDB, you have the option to appeal to the High Court.

Fit and proper person checks The fit and proper person checks are completed at two key stages on your journey to becoming a barrister: when you apply to join an Inn of Court and prior to being Called to the Bar. If you have a previous conviction, caution, reprimand or final warning which is capable of being protected, you will not be asked to disclose this information and you are legally entitled to withhold the details of anything that would now be considered protected when self-disclosing for the purposes of being admitted to an Inn or being Called to the Bar.

Reference works such as almanacs and catalogues continue to educate us by revealing the day-to-day workings of society. Access limited by licensing agreements. Details of how to do this will be provided with the decision letter you receive from the IDB.

Information for students on the fit and proper person checks

If the screening panel does conclude that there is evidence to suggest that you are not a fit and proper person, it will refer your case to a hearing panel.

The Elmbridge Hundred

Applications from candidates to be Called to the Bar at the ceremonies being held from 1st July 2021 onwards will include a requirement to undertake a Standard DBS criminal record check and an equivalent check in all relevant jurisdictions, where appropriate.
