War in Darfur and the search for peace. Ruby Patterson-Myers Vanderbilt University examines the role of women in Pan-African politics through the voices of two female activists, Addie Hunton and Vicki Garvin.

A new paradigm of the African state : fundi wa Afrika

Unique African historical experiences underscore the importance of fundamentally transforming the neo-colonised post-colonial state and its relations with the former colonial empires for permanent peace to take root. This is, according to the owner of the painting, the Tropenmuseum, the same house where he was killed, owned by the Belgian person that killed him.
