Who Should Proclaim the Passion?

It was beautifully read by three readers and punctuated with two hymns sung by choir and assembly and two chorale pieces sung by the choir to aid in our meditation. The people know how to actively listen whether sitting, standing, or kneeling.

Women read the parts of Jesus and Peter. If this reading is treated as a longer version of the normal Gospel reading as it nearly always has been in my experience, better to leave it to one very well prepared person.

Who Should Proclaim the Passion?

I don't know how much rehearsing they did but it was so well timed and so well proclaimed by some of the best lectors we have. It includes: The Passion according to Matthew Year A, The Passion according to Mark Year B, and The Passion according to Luke Year C for Palm Sunday from each of the synoptic gospels, and The Passion according to John for Good Friday. Jack, we are all, us who are human responsible for the crucifixion of Jesus by our sins beginning with Adam and Eve.

Against Reading the Passion of the Lord in Parts

Where I disagree is making people follow this mandate. It had been a tradition since 1968. It also makes it even more of a performance.

A Concord Pastor Comments: Proclaiming the Passion on Palm Sunday

Has anyone participated in such a Mass before? At our 7:30 Mass on Palm Sunday morning a visiting priest presided.

Who Should Proclaim the Passion?

As she does this several women from the congregation gather around her and escort her out the center aisle of the church. We received a much larger than average number of comments, all positive, particularly about doing the final portion from in front of the stations.

Against Reading the Passion of the Lord in Parts

Most of us shape them from pious devotions, the Stations of the Cross, Holy Week homilies, or, for us older folk, from the old Tre Ore Three Hour Good Friday service.
