OLD GENEALOGY NOTES

The Metropolitan Railway Company acquired the property, and closed the house in 1886, before its final disappearance four years later. BROWSHOLME Hall is a fine pile of building, of Elizabethan and Jacobean character.

I must add that we are practically condemned to make frontal attacks, because we can't afford to repeat the mistake we made in Seventy; we must assume the offensive, and nothing else. Giles was bequeathed in 1559 for the main- tenance of a poor scholar of his own county of Worcester, who was to take the office of porter. The ruins still remain on the banks of the river Annan.

This useful mode of indicating colour is said to have been the invention of an Italian, Father Silvestre de Petra Sancta; and the earliest instance of its application in England, the engraving of the death-warrant of Charles I, to which the seals of the subscribing parties are represented attached.
