Before the Flood (2005)

Told through flashbacks interspersed with his reflections, Tadpole takes us through his memories of Gugu's life. Mo Yan is the pseudonym of Guan Moye, who was born in Gaomi, Shandong Province, China on March 5, 1955. His first short story was published in 1981.

Frog (novel)

As of October 11, 2012, Mo Yan is the first Chinese author living inside China without French citizenship and accepted by the Chinese government to win the Nobel prize for literature. He served as Mo Yan's longtime English translator. Her face was glowing like a bright moon and she had a slim waist, well-developed chest, and nice posture.

Mo Yan (Author of Red Sorghum)

Frog opens with a playwright nicknamed Tadpole who plans to write about his aunt. He started writing while he was serving in the People's Liberation Army. As a young man, Mo Yan enlisted in the army, where his literary talent was first discovered.

Zheng Yan

Over time, however, Mo Yan's storytelling began to seek out its own, more independent paths.

Mo Yanyu

His works include Life and Death Are Wearing Me Out, Red Sorghum, The Garlic Ballads, Big Breasts and Wide Hips, The Republic of Wine, and Sandalwood Death.
