Early in March 1900 his refusal to intervene in her conflict with the director of the Court Theatre seems to have produced a painful scene between them. Frau Schrott 'passionately and obstinately' rejected the Emperor's arguments and suggestions, and left him in an 'abrupt and deeply hurting manner'. COUNT BERCHTOLD: Further, Count Tisza has demanded that we should not ask for any cessions of territory. His next chief, Count Rex at Teheran, is merely seen worrying lest that 'exile' might be his last diplomatic post.
