Women in Power: Leadership Differences By Gender

Group members also feel more involved and committed to work and making them care about the end results. Surveys are commonly used in psychology research to collect self-report data from study participants Cherry, 2009.

An Investigation of Gender Differences in Leadership Across Four Countries

Gender and the effectiveness of leaders: A meta-analysis Psychological Bulletin, 1117, 125—145. The survey contained 17 questions that asked IKEA employees to indicate their perceptions regarding the leadership style with the questions provided. Male leaders are seen as better than their female counterparts when it comes to willingness to take risks; about four-in-ten say men in top executive positions and in high political offices are better than women in this regard.

Do men and women differ in their leadership styles?

If leaders are to be effective in a diverse environment and to make the most of a global people resource, they must understand their own leadership style and leadership behaviors, and they must demonstrate enough flexibility to adapt these to different cultural expectations.

Frontiers

Conformity to sex-typed norms, affect, and the self-concept. Transformational leaders motivate others to do more than they originally intended and often even more than they thought possible.
