Schindler, Oskar 1908

Schindler played a big role under the radar and showed courage while saving many lives without thinking of his own consequences.

Schindler's Factory Krakow

A person who cheats in business or despoils the environment to make money will turn around and make large donations to a charity. Goeth agreed after Schindler bribed him.

Oscar Schindler

Bankier, Stern, and several others prepared a statement he could present to the Americans attesting to his role in saving Jewish lives. He was a gambler, who loved living on the edge.

Oskar Schindler (seated) with Leopold Pfefferberg, who was saved by Schindler.

Unlike most opportunistic German businessmen, Schindler paid enormous bribes in order to save the Jews who worked for him, spending most of his personal fortune on food and protection for his charges.
