Criminology Chapter 8: Social Conflict, Critical Criminology, and Restorative Justice Flashcards

Howard Zehr of the Centre for Justice and Peacebuilding.

Restorative justice and resolving online conflict

. Right now when two or more people are in conflict on Twitter, Facebook, Reddit or elsewhere, the most likely eventual outcome is that someone will be blocked, banned, muted or otherwise removed from the conversation, either by a participant or by a moderator of the service itself.

Restorative justice and resolving online conflict

It is a term that has been so used and abused; it's a dirty word as far as I am concerned.

Criminology Chapter 8: Social Conflict, Critical Criminology, and Restorative Justice Flashcards

Researchers who view crime as a function of the capitalist mode of production and not the social conflict that might occur in any society regardless of its economic system.

Restorative Justice vs. Conflict Resolution: Assessing for Intervention

This book consists of a collection of essays exploring, from different angles, the intersection of criminology, conflict resolution, and restorative justice. An idea I'm exploring here would be a bot that someone, either one of the parties or an observer, could mention to initiate a conflict resolution process with elements of the Restorative Justice approach included. People might understandably experience anger, frustration, anxiety, powerlessness or many other things in the midst of a conflict, but if there's a lack of basic psychological safety around interacting with another person involved, no online tool or process like this is going to be a good next step.
