'Cigarette Tits [Idealized Smokers Chest II]', Sarah Lucas, 1999

If femininity has been objectified in those realms, in works such as Cigarette Tits Idealized Smokers Chest II it is that process of objectification itself which is revealed to be both comic and ridiculous, a self-defeating reduction which turns its object into something ultimately undesirable.

'Penis Nailed to a Board', Sarah Lucas, 1991

Diethyl carbonate: aliphatic hydrocarbon, Fd 61. Due to the location and the split dimension it was not possible completely insert a Japanese paper sheet under the two edges, and, on the other hand, covering the tear with very thin Japanese paper would not have guarantee a durable conservation treatment.

Sarah Lucas: Exhibitions and Catalogue Raisonné 1989

The kozo Japanese paper was chosen because it was proven to be completely invisible after dry. From the left to the right: front of the tear and side view.
