Fortress Press - American Literature and Religion

Professor Martin S. Jaffee, University of Washington (Seattle, WA) on "the mission of religious studies:"

"... the core or foundational mission of religious studies is one of skepticism; one should not rest content, therefore, with received truths or surface meaning, but should treat all texts as constructions generated by multiple interests and capable of multiple meanings."

"Personal Self-Disclosure, Religious Studies Pedagogy, and the Skeptical Mission of the Public University," Public Lecture, The University of Alabama, 4 November 2002.

Study of Literature and Religion: An Introduction by David Jasper Paperback Book 9780333570791

The greatest literary achievements of the West, from Aeschylus to Dante to Shakespeare, cut deeply into the soul of humanity and stir in us those ultimate questions of existence, truth, and beauty which can only be answered, if they are ever answered at all, by religious commitment or the equally passionate rejection of theology and its speculation. Along the way, he discusses all the major American writers: Emerson, Hawthorne, Stowe, Twain, Eliot, Frost, and others.

Bercovitch responds at numerous points to and both cited under examining rituals of assent and the errand or mission, mainly focusing on the Puritans, but with considerable commentary on writers such as Nathaniel Hawthorne, Mark Twain, and Herman Melville. The source of the continuity is the antinomian heart of American poetry. Very minimal damage to the cover including scuff marks, but no holes or tears.
