Receiving credit will reduce the number of courses you undertake within the degree, and may also reduce the overall duration of your degree. Can what is being said be said more simply? However, both universities have significant longer-term investments that could be drawn upon if needed for cash flow purposes, negating the risk. There is a need to teach the same courses on different campuses and off campus, and to ensure the same coverage of topics and the same standards across campuses that previously were different institutions.
