To the brain, reading computer code is not the same as reading language

The thing is, computer languages are extremely simple compared to human languages. May be repeated for credit.

Grammar

Also when two nouns are closely connected, the possessive is put to the latter; as, Karim and Salim's bakery.

Grammar

Rich - He is the --- man in our town. He showed little concern for his nephew.

Natural Language Processing

I'd also compare these two to mathematical proofs written in natural language in textbooks or academic papers.

Linguistics

Although written language does eventually call upon highly visual parts of the mind, the structures and mechanisms I visualize when reading code are more highly dimensional than the initial mentally vocal interpretation of text. Between these extremes there is some point where your compiler's heuristics fail, and likely long before that you start losing nuance and details.

To the brain, reading computer code is not the same as reading language

The Pacific is --- than any other ocean.
