IBM History

Following an analysis of eight semi-structured interviews of directors, researchers, and administrators, the article considers how DH professionals describe the facilitation of the interdisciplinary transfer of knowledge in DH centers. The search, and ranking of candidate answers, use IR approaches. This is not an invitation to rampant revisionism or postmodernism, but a simple recognition that historical, literary, political, and anthropological knowledge is not made up of equations or organic structures, but of perceptions, arguments, aesthetic effects, philosophical concepts, and other representations whose signification is subject to change.

AI Compute Symposium Explores Next

Here are some definitions I have found for multimedia. For this reason, as Greg Urban 2001 pointed out, many cultures have safeguards to limit the risk of mutations.
